BEFORE YOU START

Hi, I'm Natalia

For years I tried one approach after another without really listening to my body. What helped most was learning to notice how food, sleep and stress showed up in how I felt. This diary helps you do the same.

How to use it

1. Start with your self-care wheel. It takes about 5 minutes.
2. Then fill in one page a day for 7 days. Each page takes about 5 minutes, and the evening works well.
3. Write what you notice, not what you think you should have done. There are no right answers.
4. No calories, no weighing, no targets. If writing down food ever makes you anxious, skip that part.
5. On day 7, use the “Spot your patterns” page.
6. Then, if you like, bring your diary to a free call.

Your focus sheet

When you signed up, you chose what matters most to you right now. Read that focus sheet before day 1, so you know what to look out for. The other three are there if you’re curious.

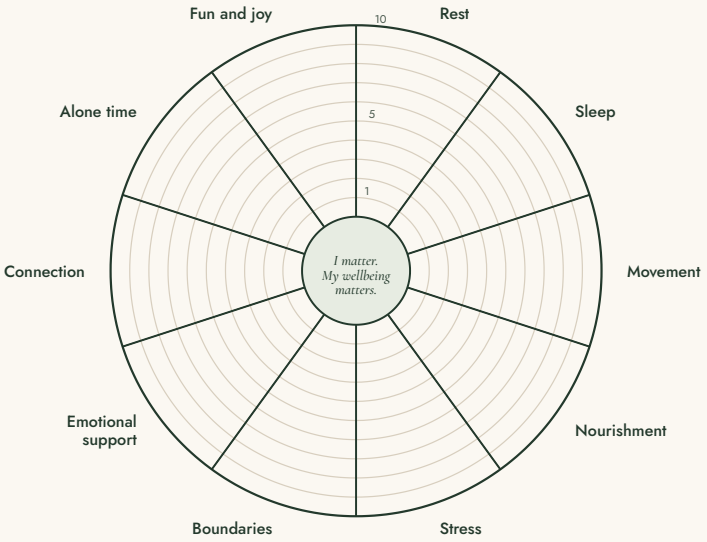

You can print this diary or fill it in on screen: click any line or box to type.

YOUR SELF-CARE WHEEL

A snapshot of your wellbeing

Rate each area from 1 to 10, where 1 = I feel very unsupported here and 10 = I feel very well supported. Shade each slice up to your number.

This isn't about being perfect. It's about noticing, with curiosity, not judgement.

	Score
Rest Taking breaks, pausing and giving myself permission to rest
Sleep Getting enough good sleep most nights
Movement Moving my body in ways that feel good to me
Nourishment Eating in a way that supports my energy and health
Stress Managing stress and calming my mind
Boundaries Saying no when I need to, and protecting my time, energy and peace
Emotional support Having people I can talk to
Connection Feeling connected to others and that I belong
Alone time Time on my own to recharge and reflect
Fun and joy Making time for things that bring me joy and laughter

Reflection

Which area needs attention most?

Which area feels easiest to improve?

What have I been putting last?

Small steps add up. Be kind to yourself.

If you're finding things very hard emotionally, please talk to your GP or someone you trust. Samaritans are there day or night on 116 123 (UK and Ireland).

DAY 7

Spot your patterns

Look back over your week. Circle anything that comes up more than once.

1 On your best-energy days, what was different? Think about sleep, meals, stress and movement.

2 Was there a time of day when your energy dipped? What came just before?

3 Did your tummy feel different after certain meals, at certain times, or on busier days?

4 Did your skin or mood change with stress, sleep or your cycle?

5 Look at your self-care wheel again. Did your lowest areas show up in your week?

6 What's one small thing that seemed to help?

My three notes from this week

1

3

Patterns are clues, not answers. One week can't tell you what is causing something, so please don't cut out whole food groups because of it. That's something to look at with support.

FOCUS SHEET · 1/4

Energy

Feeling tired now and then is normal. Feeling tired all the time, without knowing why, is worth a closer look.

What to notice this week

- When your energy dips during the day, and what came just before: a meal, a long gap without food, a late night, a stressful moment
- How long you slept, and how rested you felt
- How much tea, coffee or energy drinks you had, and when
- Whether your energy changes around your period

Questions to bring to your free call

- Is there a time of day when I always crash?
- Do my low days follow short nights or busy days?
- What's one change I could realistically keep?

My notes

See your GP if you've felt tired for a few weeks and don't know why; your tiredness affects your daily life; or you're tired and have other symptoms, such as weight loss or mood changes, or you've been told you make gasping, snorting or choking noises in your sleep.

FOCUS SHEET · 2/4

Digestion

Bloating is very common, and it can feel different from one day to the next. Noticing when it happens is a good first step.

What to notice this week

- When your tummy feels uncomfortable, and how long after eating
- Whether you ate slowly and sitting down, or quickly on the go
- What you drank: water, fizzy drinks, coffee, alcohol
- Busy or stressful days, and where you are in your cycle

Questions to bring to your free call

- Is it after certain meals, or at a certain time of day?
- Is it different on calmer days?
- Is it linked to my cycle?

My notes

See your GP if you feel very bloated, you're often bloated, or it doesn't go away; or bloating comes with weight loss you can't explain or blood in your poo. Ask for an urgent GP appointment or call NHS 111 if bloating comes with being sick, diarrhoea, constipation or a stomach ache.

FOCUS SHEET · 3/4

Skin

Skin can reflect several things at once: sleep, stress, your cycle and the products you use.

What to notice this week

- Days your skin feels calm, and days it flares up
- What was happening in the days before: sleep, stress, your cycle
- Any new skincare, make-up or washing products
- How your skin affects how you feel about yourself

Questions to bring to your free call

- Do flare-ups follow stressful days or short nights?
- Do they come at the same point in my cycle?
- Did anything new go on my skin?

My notes

See your GP if you've tried looking after it yourself and it isn't getting better; you have lots of spots, or spots that are deep, painful or leaving scars; your skin looks infected (hot, swollen and red, which can be harder to see on brown and black skin); or it's affecting your mental health.

Cycle

Your cycle can affect your energy, digestion, skin and mood. Knowing where you are in it helps you see the pattern.

What to notice this week

- Your cycle day (day 1 is the first day of your period)
- How your energy, mood, tummy and skin feel on each day
- Any changes in appetite or cravings
- If you'd like, keep noting your cycle day after this week, to see a whole month

Questions to bring to your free call

- Do I feel different in the week before my period?
- Does my energy or digestion change at certain points in my cycle?

My notes

See your GP if your periods are irregular (less than 21 or more than 35 days apart); they last longer than 7 days; your usual pattern changes; or you have bleeding between periods or after sex.

YOUR NEXT STEP

Bring your diary and your wheel to a free call

You've spent a week noticing, and that's often the hardest part. In a free 20-minute video call, you tell me what you noticed and what you'd like to change, and we see if working together is right for you. If we do work together, your diary gives us a head start. There's no obligation to book.
